Learning Outcomes

- The participant will recognize the relational commonalities in mentoring relationships and how they produce organic partnerships.
- The participant will compare and contrast effective mentoring relationships with ineffective relationships.
- The participant will be able to recognize and recommend effective mentoring practices to their peers.

A Working Definition of Mentoring

A mentoring relationship can be viewed as one where the mentor and protégé provide support for one another, believe in each other's abilities and show a mutual respect and understanding of each other's professional development.

(McWeeny, 2002; Schwiebert, 2000).

According To Research What Is Effective Mentoring?

- Co-mentoring (Murdock et al., 2013)
- Mutuality (Johnson, 2013)
- Relational Model (Walker, 2006)
- Mentoring In Ethics, Culture and Gender (Walker, 2006)

Ineffective Mentoring

- Being insensitive to a mentee's needs or concerns.
- Only focusing on practical applications (Walker, 2006).
- Not being sensitive to culturally dissimilar students (Walker, 2006).
- No emotional connection between the mentor or mentee (Johnson, 2013).

Participants Activity

Practical Considerations

- Facilitate training for your program.
- Integrating interviews or surveys that measures the effectiveness of the mentoring program of the institution.
- Recognizing in mentees when there's a need for personal or academic support.
- Create a mission statement through self-evaluation

(Purgason et al., 2018)
